VIII, one inherited from dam and one from sire.

The prevalence of factor VIII inhibitors and genetic aspects of inhibitor development in Chinese patients with haemophilia A

People with a severe deficiency may bleed for no reason. The swelling may press on nerves and lead to numbness or pain.

What is Hemophilia

Although further improvements are being made to the baculoviral system, a vaccinia virus-based platform has more recently been developed for scale up in mammalian cells.

The prevalence of factor VIII inhibitors and genetic aspects of inhibitor development in Chinese patients with haemophilia A

This is especially important for people with severe disease because the infusion works the best within one hour of a bleeding episode.
