Two Views of Capital Hours

There are many different ways through which states achieved state fiscal capacity and this different capacity accelerated or hindered their economic development. A few papers use quasi-experimental designs, and have found that entrepreneurship and the density of small businesses indeed have a causal impact on regional growth. Wolfowitz, John Zeleny, and unidentified, 1933-1941.

John W. Mauchly papers, 1908

As a youth, Mauchly was interested in science, and in particular with electricity, and was known to fix neighbors' electric systems at the age of 13 or 14. Edited at Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government, The Review has published some of the most important articles in empirical economics.
