An Eye

. On the east it extended for many miles along the Sha-ho, so as to protect Fushun from flank attack. From Linievitch's or the First Manchurian Army the well-tried 1st Siberian Army Corps under Baron Stackelberg had been sent to strengthen Grippenbergs army, which consisted largely of European corps.

An eye

This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. A little west of the railway, at Lin-shin-pu, the Sha-ho, which is a small stream, takes a decided bend south-west, eventually joining the Tai-tze-ho. They held no fewer than three.

An Eye

At this period the force under General Kuropatkin's command was some 400,000 strong, and had about 2000 guns.

An Eye

Going west it followed practically the river as far as the railway, which cut the centre of the Russian lines. Between them and the railway was Grippenbergs Second Manchurian Army, with its headquarters at Zifonti; Kaulbars held the centre, and Linievitch the east.

Brooke: An Eye

All stores had been amply replenished, and the branch railway lines from Mukden to the Sha-ho were finished. Thus the Russian lines were in the shape of a bow, with Mukden behind and equidistant from the two ends.

An eye

Leaving the Sha-ho at this bend the Russian lines struck across country to the Hun-ho, the large affluent of the Liao-ho, which after passing Mukden flows south and west.
