This must be extended to Kashmir so their people can travel more seamlessly through the border.

The Escalation of Tensions between India and Nepal

The traditional approach, focused on security, military and other geostrategic factors, continues to prevail, especially in moments of crisis and tension such as now. Constantino Xavier, Fellow, Brookings India, answers some of the key questions on the crisis, the possible factors that escalated the dispute, the geostrategic context, and ways to de-escalate towards a solution. India is not known for aggression, so may it be any country India takes steps in a systematic and balanced approach.

India Nepal Relations

Now is the time to make a shift to a state of dynamic equilibrium, a foreign policy that is flexible to change.

India's army chief visits Nepal to mend ties after border row

In November 2019, New Delhi came up with a new political map incorporating Kalapani in its territory. At that time the Nepali prime minister issued a statement that they do not want to issue a new map.

KP Sharma Oli made the remarks at a seminar titled 'Nepal's International Border Security and Areas of Coordination among Border Management related Agencies', organised by the Nepal Army. Nepal is a land-locked nation and this forces it to bare a high duty to avail access to the services of the ocean. Nepali prime minister's foreign policy adviser, Rajan Bhattarai, told DW that the two neighbors are ready to engage in dialogue despite differences over border issues.

The Nepal-India relationship witnessed some uneasy situations in 2015-16.

Border issues with India will be resolved through dialogue, says Nepal PM KP Oli

South Asian countries do not want a situation in which they are forced to take sides between China and India as all of them want to hedge on their rivalry and reap maximum benefit. The 4 points included demilitarization in phases from both sides of the LoC; no change in the border or redrawing of borders but the movement of Kashmiris and trade will be free across the LoC; self-governance or autonomy in Kashmir without full independence; overseeing the progress via a consisting of.
