Saffron Walden Town FC

Explore the Service Wing including historic kitchens, a dairy and laundry rooms to see what life would have been like for the Victorian servants that worked here.

Audley End House

The rest of the land is primarily arable farmland, farmed in-hand or let on agricultural tenancies. L-TT-N 1773 Story poem about the elopement of a young girl.

Audley End House and Gardens Directions

The second house, built by Thomas Howard, Lord Treasurer to James I, overlies the earlier building but had a second, larger outer court to the west. Includes Essex map, index, 19 engravings. Walks all around the parish and beyond.

Audley End House and Gardens

In the 1820s the house was refurbished in the Jacobean style by the third Baron Baybrooke. After his death, Audley's house was passed onto the 4th Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Howard - but he was then executed in 1572 for conspiring with Mary Queen of Scots and against Elizabeth I.
