Industrial welfare and the state: nation and city reconsidered

This article expands the debate by examining how nation-states create statutory welfare by addressing institutional variety beyond markets. The study included a four-month winter sampling program and a three-month summer sampling program at three sites in the Chicago Metropolitan Area; a suburban background location approximately 50 miles north of downtown Chicago SUB, an inner-city urban site at the University of Illinois at Chicago located one mile west of downtown Chicago URB, and an industrial location on Chicago's southeast side IND.
