CATHOLIC ENCYCLOPEDIA: Ecclesiasticus (Sirach)

These chapters are completed by the author's signature, and are followed by two hymns, the latter apparently a sort of alphabetical acrostic. {23:37} And those who are left behind will acknowledge that there is nothing better than the fear of God, and that there is nothing sweeter than to have respect for the commandments of the Lord. The version has retained many Greek words in a latinized form: eremus vi, 3 ; eucharis vi, 5 ; basis vi, 30 ; acharis xx, 21 , xenia xx, 31 ; dioryx xxiv, 41 ; poderes xxvii, 9 ; etc.

Ben Sira

{2:20} Those who fear the Lord will prepare their hearts, and they will sanctify their souls in his sight. It is absent from the versions and its genuineness is doubtful.

SIRACH, THE WISDOM OF JESUS THE SON OF

{10:5} The prosperity of a man is in the hand of God, and he will place his honor above the face of the scribe. {10:27} The great man, and the judge, and the powerful have honor.

Sirach, Book Of Definition and Meaning

{15:17} He has set water and fire before you.

Sirach

A second manuscript A was found by the same scholar in the collection brought by him from Egypt, containing iii. Its advocates claim that, throughout the book, one and the same general purpose can be easily made out, to wit: the purpose of teaching the practical value of Hebrew wisdom, and that one and the same method in handling the materials can be readily noticed, the writer always showing wide acquaintance with men and things, and never citing any exterior authority for what he says.
