Please email us at: Chipmakers and other advanced manufacturers have been running hot for six months now, with some notable notches in their belts. Financial institutions should consider re-engineering their risk management programs to develop the capabilities required to meet these challenges, and some have already undertaken efforts to enhance these programs. The German 10-year yield, for one, is expected to remain negative, while the US Federal Reserve has indicated it will likely leave rates near zero at least through 2023.

10 Key Risks for Businesses in a Global Economy

Nearly all employers are aware of the challenges and have established policies to help, but they are finding it hard to execute their diversity, equity, and inclusion DEI strategies. Many other workforce changes are also in progress. This was cited as the top product development priority among North American and European respondents and number three in APAC.

COVID-19 and the great reset: Briefing note 16, July 30, 2020 Our latest executive survey reveals a darkening outlook. This implies that leaders across the public and private sectors should build learning and adaptation into their reopening plans from the start. Liquidity stress tests are also being used more extensively in several areas: assessing adequacy of excess liquidity 57 percent, up from 39 percent, meeting regulatory requirements and expectations 65 percent, up from 52 percent, and setting liquidity limits 56 percent, up from 44 percent.
