The double ghetto : Canadian women and their segregated work : Armstrong, Pat, 1945

The double ghetto: Canadian women and their segregated work by Pat Armstrong For decades, generations of readers have shared their favorite passages of favorite Louis L'Amour novels and short stories: parents with their children, neighbors with their friends, executives with their staff and clergy with their congregations. In December 2015, Toyo wrote a very compelling grant application to Maple Leaf Sports Entertainment MLSE for Lady Ballers Camp and received the Toronto Raptors Community Action grant for this young organization. She has understood that true equity and justice would not be reached without understanding the lived experience of women who are underserved, marginalized or excluded by the barriers of race, income or gender identity.

Pat Armstrong

Last hired, first fired : women and the Canadian work force. In particular, while analysing the problems with this form of work, the possibility that women may use such situations to pose challenges to the status quo is also explored. Toronto, McClelland and Stewart, 1978.

The Cottage or the Sweatshop?

Toyo is committed to creating change in her communities and improving the lives of others.
