Harold Ockenga and the New Evangelical Movement he Founded

As of September 2011 this is the most up-to-date scholarly work on the neo-evangelicals I know about. Elwin Wright, who sought for an evangelical ecumenism. Rosell, who really had an insider's view of much that was going on during much of the time covered in the book, given the fact that he is the son of Merv Rosell, an evangelist mentioned briefly in the book.

Henry and Ockenga saying several times that they hoped to bring intellectual respectability back to evangelicalism. Rosell was one of my seminary professors and we became friends -- but, then again, he became everyone's friend. Garth Rosell, the son of the evangelical evangelist Merv Rosell, tells the story of the emergence of evangelicalism in the 1950's, especially at the hands of Harold Ockenga and Billy Graham.
