MISSIONS, EVANGELICAL FOREIGN.

By 1985 career personnel from the continent reached an estimated 39,309, with an additional 27,933 serving as short-term missionaries.

Alexander Stewart of Cromarty

Commission, James Christie, and Alexander F. In the late 1820s Campbell had begun to teach a form of Universal Redemption and claims were made that some connected with his congregation had spoken in tongues.

Christian missionaries in China

If the moral eye--the intention of the soul--be single to serve God and secure heavenly treasures, it directs the whole person's actions; but if we are biased or prejudiced in our intentions, we are sure to be led aside to follow after the traditions of men rather than the commandments of God. The four largest North American evangelical boards are not affiliated with either group--the Southern Baptist Convention 3,346 career missionaries in 1985 ; Wycliffe Bible Translators 3,022 ; Youth with a Mission 1,741 ; and New Tribes Mission 1,438. When we speak of a person having an evil eye, we mean that that person is jealous, envious, grudging, unstable, etc.

Those who traveled most formed the opinion that Negro Baptists were pretty well up.

E. C. Morris, 1855

They may be summed up as follows : 1 There is an astounding ignorance of what missions really are and in consequence a great deal of suspicion regarding them. And the more he read and studied, the more he was convinced that he ought to go and tell the gospel to these people.

North American Foreign Missions, 1810

Morris' exalted station is due to no accident. One of the ministers who introduced this idea into the American frontier was the Scotch-Irish Presbyterian James McGready of the Gasper River Church in southwest Kentucky.
