Using that menu choice opens the Define Delayed Codes window, and any actions you specify there — such as starting a new header, discontinuing an existing footer, or setting new page margins — will be carried out on the specified subsequent page. The code can also be saved as a so it is available in any document. But see information about using only one of the numbering methods, not both unless you actually want duplicate numbers on each page! Headers are located inside i.

Alan Simpson

Hence, to replace the content of one of these items from a particular page forward, think in terms of superseding or supplanting it, not in terms of editing it.
