Sources of Western Zhou History: Inscribed Bronze Vessels / Edition 1 by Edward L. Shaughnessy

Apart from the obvious argument that a historian should know as much as possible about all aspects of the documents he or she wishes to use, there is also one overriding reason for becoming informed about this technology. The famous taotie of the Shang era was also phased out and replaced by meander patterns on the side of the vessel. Shaughnessy has written a meticulous and detailed work on the historiography and interpretation of these objects.

Sources of Western Zhou History by Edward L. Shaughnessy

The bronzes of the Eastern Zhou period, after 771 BC, show signs of a gradual renaissance in the craft and much regional variation, which appears ever more complex as more Eastern Zhou sites are unearthed. The emergent product is then polished to improve its aesthetic value. Bronze is an alloy that is made up of a mixture of two metals.
