In addition, police should be prohibited from approaching people in the absence of reasonable suspicion or probable cause and asking for their names or identification in order to check whether they have outstanding warrants.

Case studies: Promoting human rights and democracy through education in Europe today

Nothing in this Declaration may be interpreted as implying for any State, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights and freedoms set forth herein. The new Democratic Administration will undertake a full review and analysis of the programs that should be adopted if the protection possible is to be provided to the civilian population of our nation.
