Bruce, PhB'35, AM'42, mixed documentation of the city's homosexual world-nightspots, parties, and participants-with a study of the personality traits of the homosexual man, placing the results of his informants' personality tests within the context of the social problems they faced as urban homosexuals. Beam Under the auspices of a cooperating committee of women prominent in sociology and education, the Bureau of Social Hygiene has produced that study of the sex experience of normal women which is the next step so long waited for in this field of research. Results: Depression and fatigue were found to have the most ubiquitous and robust effect on the overall and any given subdivision of the HRQoL composite.
