Petronius, Satyricon, section 48

Yes, it has some integrity - Sullivan has been careful to note breaks in the manuscript. The conspirators expect the greedy people of the area to shower a wealthy but sick old man with gifts so that he will include them in his will. She scarce had spoke; e'er from a cloud there flies A blasting flame, that bursting shook the skyes; At Jove's avenging thunder, to his hell, From the clos'd earth, affrighted Pluto fell.

The Satyricon of Petronius Arbiter Privately Printed for Hogarth Press NY 1922

Who rob'd me of them I know not; perhaps my eager mind outrun my body; or while with an unhappy haste I aim'd at all; I was cheated with abortive joys. And take my part in a farce, or hold up my end in the barber shops! One pen size hole in dj at bottom of spine and another on back jacket seam. Tickled by our flattery, and mellowed by the wine, Trimalchio was just about drunk.

He wrapped a mantle around his left arm, boldly rushed out of doors with drawn sword, and ran a woman through the middle about here, no harm to what I touch. The present translation is by far the most readable of the many efforts that have been made to render the art and wisdom of the original.

Petronius

It was being heated for Trimalchio. Guests are treated to pedi-cures while they wait whether they want them or not , and with musical accompaniment.

Petronius

Suddenly two Syrians arrived, intent on plundering the room, and, while quarrelling greedily over the silver, pulled at a jug and split it. Binding, spine and corners are tight, sturdy and square.

Satyricon Petronius Arbiter by Wilde Oscar

Quartilla cheers up and informs them that it is good they agreed, because other-wise a lynch mob would have shown up at their door to avenge her dishonor.
