Students do not bother to use their imagination while preparing a project or report or dissertation and what is worse is that the institutions also do not object.

Education Crisis: India is in the middle of an engineering education crisis

Although at unsparing times like this, virtual classes are doing just fine, but on the quality of the education so to speak. It is an undisputed historical fact that higher education, over the centuries, has been able to induce change and progress in society. This frequently proves boring and burdensome to students.

Education Crisis in India

Naturally, they are fit for only such work as needs sheer manual labor. Though crores of rupees have been spent on adult education, its achievements are not worth mentioning.

Education Crisis: India is in the middle of an engineering education crisis

Ever since, the Bill has been lying in the archives of the Parliament. Also the fact that according to the UNCTAD study on the 1971 base line India exported 900 crores worth trained manpower goes to prove that the product of higher education is irrelevant for the country itself but serves the cause of other countries. The OIE declined to answer whether it had made any reforms since the audit.
