Many valuable books also, such as the Baydn-esh'Shdra', and the el-Musdmnif, and the Kith-eU Istakdmahy and the volumes of the Tilsimdt, and other unique books were burnt on the occasion. In process of time other tribes followed them — chiefly from Nejd — and these gave birth to numerous branches which have assumed distinctive names, and it is now almost impossible to ascertain the correct parentage of each. As here related of the Portuguese, the Arab and Beloochee sentinels from their different posts on the forts and watch-towers still keep up an incessant chanting shout from 7 p.
