Comparative analysis reveals migratory swallows (Hirundinidae)

have less pointed wings than residents

The wing shape of a given species is constrained by the conflicting morphological demands of a wide range of flight modes — each with a variety of associated ecological and behavioural correlates. Chicago: CTA, 'L', METRA, PACE Bus, Divvy Bikes.

8. Charts

For most modern aircraft, the chord length varies along the span, and the leading and trailing edges may be swept.

Conversely, low-speed flapping manoeuvring, employed by pure hawkers e.

Forecasting Thunderstorms

Wingtip pointedness was calculated using a variant of principal components analysis called size-constrained components analysis, as described in. For now, I love plotting them even though I don't understand them well.
