Richard Butler (general)

We need to realize that slavery is not just a history lesson -- there are still 12-27 million people in bondage today world-wide, mostly debt-slaves in South Asia who can be in bondage for generations. Following the granting of this patent, as well as some others in the same territory, a dispute arose between the States of Kentucky and Virginia over the boundary line between the two states, and the dispute was finally settled by a commission in 1799. Geese, turkeys, and other wild fowls supplied them with meat more delicious than the chicken of the present day.
