Highland Fling by Katie Fforde

Katie Fforde is my most-loved writer among chick-lit writers and this book remains my favourite read of hers. That's how I felt, and I realised that if a so-called celebrity with a big house and money felt like this, then others did too.

Highland Fling by Nancy Mitford

And one day, he doesn't return, and neither does Poppet. I read this a few years ago and didn't remember liking it, but I started it yesterday morning and finished it last night - just had to keep on reading. BBC Radio 4 13 July 2012 The Gobetweenies: Series 2 Episode 2 Marcella Evaristi Mark Bonnar, Sarah Alexander, Finlay Christie, and Lucy has noticed the difference between her affluent mum, a children's fiction writer, and her broke dad who has just started a new job with Your Pets Painted in the Afterlife.

Thanks to my niece, it didn't.

Eddie Rose, 40 years of Comedy & Song, Scotlands Son of Fun

This was a cosy read with a lovely ending, a perfect snuggle on the sofa book. She leaves her heart there, but discovers that real love always follows you home. It was an enjoyable light read with a very realistic view of Scotland in winter.
