A distant field of murder : Western District frontiers 1834

As it was published in the early 1990s, unfortunately the scholarship is somewhat outdated, especially in relation to current theoretical frameworks ie the History Wars, the politics of remembering, as well as reference to works by other more recent authors. The typical vegetation of the volcanic plain was temperate grassland or grassy Eucalypt woodland, ideal landscapes for livestock grazing. It does not explain which fishery is being talked about, and if it is linked with the Convincing Ground then it is again a reference to the recent past, for the fishery in that location was new and would suggest that the incident had happened not long before.

‘A distant field of murder’ by Jan Critchett

Much of the intervening area is touristically named Shipwreck Coast.

Inheritance Bibliography

Gunditjmara family story by Dawn A. Rainfall in summer is not uncommon but is only rarely heavy; though in March 1946 rains of up to 300 millimetres 12 in in a week constitute easily the heaviest falls in the district. Colac is also a service centre but is positioned between the larger Warrnambool and Geelong.

A distant field of murder : western district frontiers, 1834

The district is bounded by the district in the north, by the district in the east, by and the in the south, and by the border in the west. It describes how one culture, that of the original possessors of the land, responded to the catastrophe visited upon it by the white settlers. The People of Budj Bim: Engineers of aquaculture, builders of stone house settlements and warriors defending country.
