Further on the open oak staircase is divided from the hall by arched openings with marble columns. The Manchester Watch Committee minutes provide considerable evidence on expenditure on buildings, on sanitation, heating, repairs, extensions and refits, prior the request for new stations. Variation in any does not necessarily result in change in physical condition and thus, exceptionally, though ex display, long out of print or even retailed a book may still remain unused and therefore 'New'.

Guide to The Towers

His first full project was a large house in Cheshire called Broomfield: the daughter of the house, Elizabeth, was to be his first wife, and the house was to become his family home from 1869-1909.
