30s and 40s Emigrant Wilderness Exploration

Experimenters and modernists, Ansel Adams and his fellow California photographers developed a straight and highly formal, sometimes even abstract, approach to their subjects. GERRY August 16, 2012 at 9:31 pm Just a few thoughts: It is hard to say any new innovative work is being done today.

Intimate Nature: Ansel Adams and the Close View

In a future article, I will go into more details about settings and exposure modes. The pack with extra film holders and lenses weighs about the same. RICHARD WONG March 2, 2017 at 11:14 pm Thanks Jan, glad you got something from this post.

Getting Started Guide to Close

My only comment on your selections would be that Porter has to be number two and not the new number two because I believe he invented color nature photography. What effect does the angle have on the way you view the subject? MICHAEL FINNEGAN February 9, 2018 at 7:41 am Thank you Richard for opening such a wonderful debate. Getting There The nearest airports to fly into are San Francisco, Oakland, or Fresno, each about four hours from our meeting place.

30s and 40s Emigrant Wilderness Exploration

RICHARD WONG June 27, 2009 at 4:52 pm Thanks Todd and Leann. Once you have your subject in clear focus, look at the composition, just as you would with any other image.

Sierra Club

To enlarge an image beyond the negative size, light passing through the negative must first go through a lens and be projected onto the photographic paper from a distance away. The Camera The New Ansel Adams Photography Series, Book 1.

Editorial Guidelines

Eyewitness Eyewitness is a first-person work of extremely short nonfiction 625 words that immerses the reader in a particular experience of nature or social change activism. Our camp at West Fork Cherry Creek will be at just over 7,400 feet and our camp at Long Lake will be at 8,700 feet.

Not Advised: Close

This section consists of a review, analysis, or essay roughly 1,200 words focused on various forms of contemporary art and culture occurring at the intersections of ecology and environmentalism, eco-conscious living, sustainability, climate action and awareness, and traditional forms of nature writing, composition, and expression.

Getting Started Guide to Close

ELIOT DRAKE January 27, 2017 at 5:38 pm Carr Clifton and Dykinga are Muench clones, excellent but no new ground. We will have an opportunity to explore the creek and waterfall, or day hike cross-country to nearby lakes.
