This was followed by the appointment of who only lasted two months with one win in 11 games before being parting company with Barnet. Unfortunately Barnet did not maintain their momentum into 2002—03, and Shreeves was sacked late in that season, with Barnet in very much the same mid-table position he had found them in. After a run of thirteen games without a win in any competition Paul Fairclough announced his resignation to take up a role as director and leaving the first team duties to his assistant.

Barnet F.C.

Oxford and his men immediately cried treachery; as staunch Lancastrians, they were wary of Montagu's recent defection.

Together in Barnet

In the , Barnet, despite their status as a fifth-tier team, managed to progress into the fourth round of the competition, winning against , , and.

Kevin Barnet

He led Barnet to their best league position for many years finishing runners-up in the renamed scoring 86 goals. He received some criticism, however; after winning the throne in 1461, he proved indecisive about putting down rebellions. .
