It seems like everything is going well despite the impending war. Furthermore, one important part of this investigation is to evaluate the target audience the propaganda and what advantages would arise if the propaganda went well.

The Study of Propaganda: A Personal Perspective

Clothing females in organizational uniforms, while fairly popular when the nation was at peace, became a political problem for the government once the conflict broadened throughout Europe and additional women were needed as war-essential auxiliaries.

Nazi Propaganda — United States Holocaust Memorial Museum

As organizations quickly proliferated in the Third Reich, so did female uniforms. The DZN was surveilled by several authorities: the press department of the Reichskommissariat in Den Haag under Willi Janke, the under Joseph Goebbels and the Pressepolitisches Amt under.
