Two things I found particularly interesting.

The English Way of Death: The Common Funeral Since 1450

This was a five-star book most of the way through and then it's almost like the editor quit on the last couple of chapters, where Litten delves too far into extant examples rather than talking about the norm for the times.

The English Way of Death the Common Funeral Since 1450 by Litten Julian

Julian Litten, long regarded as England's authority on funeral customs, leads us from the pomp and panoply of the post-medieval funeral to the clinical anonymity of present-day obsequies.

Some moderate creases and wear. No missing or damaged pages, no creases or tears, no underlining or highlighting of text, and no writing in the margins. Litten provides a compendious guide to the consumerism of death.
