Along with public dissatisfaction with President Gorbachev's policies of perestroika and glasnost, the Soviet Union ultimately failed. The fact that it received special attention from the planners, combined with the fact that industrial production was relatively easy to plan even without minute feedback, led to significant growth in that sector. They wanted to produce munition as much as possible.

Soviet economic development from Lenin to Khrushchev

Due to loss of territory, manpower and capital, GNP declined in 1942 to mere 66% of pre war level. Gulag labour was used for economic development, the prisoners were most important for capital construction.

Why the USSR Collapsed Economically

Moscow's decision to copy the IBM 360 of 1965 proved a decisive mistake, for it locked scientists into an antiquated system they were unable to improve.

Why the USSR Collapsed Economically

These inefficiencies clogged the Soviet agricultural machine and reduced output. When the planning goals had been established by Gosplan, economic ministries drafted plans within their jurisdictions and disseminated planning data to the subordinate enterprises.

Five

Where centralized economic planning helped spur its mid-century growth, the Soviet Union's piecemeal reforms to decentralize economic power ultimately undermined its economy. By 1929, it was a very large user of statistical machines, on the scale of the US or.
