Healthcare Employee Engagement Improves Patient Care

One of the strengths of our study is that we surveyed a large sample of both allied health care professionals and CAM practitioners from a variety of professions and with varying lengths of time since qualification. In primary care, nurse practitioners can perform most services that physicians provide, often at a lower cost. But What Factors Affect Engagement? Areas of need for cannabis research are highlighted as well.

Implementing evidence

The report summarizes the current state of knowledge of what is known about potential therapeutic and harmful effects of cannabis use. Team building exercises, such as implementing Lean initiatives, allow employees to get to know each other, which helps build a sense of engagement within employee social groups.

Educational Resources

Fewer than half of public health workers have formal training in a public health discipline such as epidemiology or health education 7. The package consists of five books, each covering a unit of the programme; a hefty volume of offprints, providing instant access to original papers; an interactive CD Rom that takes the learner through the processes of searching for and appraising systematic reviews and randomised controlled trials; a glossary of important terms; and an evidence based health care workbook.
