A New Exodus? Americans are Exiting Liberal Churches

Churches and denominations birthed in biblical orthodoxy have been ransacked and secularized.

The Empty Church: The Suicide of Liberal Christianity

Indeed, many today who are outside of Christianity equate it fully with GOP politics more so than Christian faith, and so want nothing to do with the core belief

When people truly encounter the Lord, they will gladly forsake everything and follow Him.

Autopsy of a Dead UCC Congregation

For many Christians, however, the issue is not that open and shut, and more and more Christians are turning to the leaders of their denominations to provide a distinct answer to the age-old question: Can Christians and the death penalty go hand in hand? Some are more in continuity with 1950s and 1960s Civil Rights leaders, like they charismatic Rev. These radicals generally were not embraced by the church hierarchy, which served as a bulwark of the establishment, but they kept the church vital and prophetic. Dreher lives in Baton Rouge, La.

Progressive Christianity's Suicide, ELCA Edition

But in the early 1990s, the historical tether between American identity and faith snapped. History does not often give the satisfaction of a sudden and lasting turning point.
