What is prenatal care and why is it important?

Eliminating racial disparities in maternal and infant mortality must be a priority for the United States. Moreover, the CDC standard practice is to only consider maternal race when assigning infant race, thereby underestimating and obscuring important patterns in infant mortality. SUID describes the death of an infant less than 1 year old in which the cause of death is not obvious prior to investigation.

Omnigraphics

This revision included a pregnancy-status checkbox for death certificates to identify whether a person was pregnant at the time of death or had been pregnant within specified time periods e.

Preventing Infant and Maternal Mortality: State Policy Options

However, often through no fault of their own, some parents may need support to provide these interactions. From 2014 to 2015, Tennessee experienced a 3. Deaths from complications like respiratory distress and bacterial infections are also much more likely to occur in infants born early.

Pregnancy and Oral Health Feature

However, research suggests it is no less important.
