Las Vegas Raiders

The rivalry waned in later years, but saw a minor resurgence in the 2000—02 period. While based in Los Angeles, the team hosted New England in the divisional round of the playoffs in 1986.

The Western Raiders

Officially, BALCO was a service business for blood and urine analysis and food supplements. In a game in which the Raiders led for most of the game, the game was played in a heavy snowstorm. The move was greeted with much fanfare, and under new head coach the began well for the.

Raiders of the West

On October 10, 2010, the Raiders ended their 13-game losing streak to the San Diego Chargers with a score of 35—27. Although exact ownership stakes are not known, it has been reported that Davis owned 47% of the team shares before his death in 2011. They still finished 5—11 and ended up third in the AFC West, the first time they did not finish last since 2002.

The Western Raiders

The four most recent contests between the Raiders and Steelers harkened back to the rivalry's history of bitterness and close competition. The victory point card is not used in this scenario. In , the Raiders' fortunes improved dramatically with the introduction of head coach and eventual owner.
