Life in Industrial Towns

Two examples of individuals in the English Industrial Revolution are shown below.

The Industrial Revolution: Conclusion

Per capita chicken consumption has risen from 14 pounds to 57 pounds. Similarly, in 1913, Henry Ford instituted the assembly line into his Ford Model-T car manufacturing plants to boost both efficiency and production.

Industrialization, Labor, and Life

At the time, most people rarely traveled beyond the small and medium-sized villages where they lived.

The Lowell Mill Girls in the 19th Century

Half of all boys ages 14 to 19 were in the labor force in 1920; nowadays, about one-third of boys age 16 to 19 are in the labor force. One of the most radical, the IWW, founded in 1905 and popularly known as the Wobblies, recruited primarily among the unskilled immigrants but also competed with the AFL to attract skilled laborers. They knew that those coming to the cities needed a job and somewhere to live.

New Beginnings: Immigrant Women and The American Experience

In practice, however, data collection typically focuses on paid informal employment, mainly outside agriculture. Women are increasingly in touch with the flexibility, empowerment, and challenge inherent in owning and operating a, large business, or even a or sole-proprietorship.

Working Conditions in Factories (Issue)

Although the major cause of death in both 1915 and 2015 is the same—heart disease—the next leading causes have changed. Today, less than 1 percent of U.
