A flood warning is the second level of alert if a particular river is approaching flood stage, but a flood warning is not a guarantee of disaster.

Floods & floodplain planning

They usually are caused by intense storms that produce more runoff than an area can store or a stream can carry within its normal channel. Multiple groups with a stake in protecting their communities from flooding carry out floodplain management functions including zoning, building codes, enforcement, education and other tasks. During large, short-term events, the USGS collects streamflow and additional data including storm tide, wave height, high-water marks, and additional sensor deployments to aid in documenting flood events.
