Our Changing Planet: The View from Space

If I was forced to choose one as my favourite, it would have to be the Space and Home section.

20 Years of Observing Earth From the Space Station

Amazing Pictures An out of world experience.

Instruments go through a rigorous approval process and cycle through every couple of years, turning the station into a virtual swiss-army knife of interchangeable remote sensing tools.

What Does Earth Look Like From Space? An Astronaut's Perspective

Page after page, amazing photograph after amazing photograph, this is a breathtaking volume. We know more about what is going on at the remote high latitudes and high altitudes from the satellite observations of the past 50 years than we would have every known from hundreds of years of ground observations.
