Bird's eye view of Executive education in the country

The residential character of the village is evident in this view. Visits to Opsrey nests with local schools and camps allow children and community members to see Osprey chicks up close and see scientific research in real time.

While there is open enrollment for general management courses, the functional management courses are mostly tailor-made and are industry or company specific in nature. It was apparently based on plans supplied by the railroad company, but not constructed as planned, resulting in Howard being criticized in the local press for this misrepresentation.
