Nurse Educator Role Survey

Qualitative Description In order to explore the experiences of RNs and LPNs, and following consultation with my supervisor, I decided to engage in a small scale, qualitative descriptive study.

Technology and being a nurse educator Assignment

While I ended up with a mix of RNs and LPNs, I was unable to confirm the specific units or facilities where these nurses practiced. Many of the evaluated educational strategies represent approaches that address these barriers; however, several do not.

The Nurse as Patient Educator: Perceived Responsibilities and Factors Enhancing Role Development

It was very specific points that were, at which point does it become a patient that only the RN can look after. As a result, this participant recounted feeling quite marginalized. Each program session was evaluated to improve the session design, content, and speaker effectiveness.

Implementation study of a 5

Implementing the new clinical nurse leader role with gleaning insights from the past. The systematic documentation and reporting of situational awareness factors were ranked as the least useful part of the system. In other words, how the role is introduced and how others understand the role of the full scope LPN could play a significant role in both the determination and perceptions of appropriateness or fit of the role.
