MUSEUM AQUARELLE, WATERCOLOURS IN PENCIL FORM

Despite the intensity, laying out color is smooth and there is little evidence of graininess or color manipulation. While you will have much more dramatic blending with the inclusion of water or another type of solvent, even when dry they perform quite well.

There he studied with Italo Scanga, who introduced him to former students and friends, including Bruce Nauman, Dan Flavin, Sol LeWitt, and Marcia Tucker, then a curator at the Whitney Museum. SWISS MADE Museum Aquarelle colour pencils are designed and manufactured in Caran d'Ache's Geneva workshops in line with the Swiss Made quality label and with eco-friendly standards and certifications. Color depth is impressive as well as the ability to blend both dry and especially wet.
