They have to take into consideration not only the physical, but also the mental and emotional preparation of the injured athlete. Athletic trainers should not be confused with , which include personal trainers. Because an athletic trainer is able to deliver a proactive approach to healthcare, their knowledge of the root cause of injuries is what makes them so valuable on the floor.

Athletic Trainers: Jobs, Career, Salary and Education Information

Cost savings arise from the avoidance of unnecessary physician visits and trips to the emergency room, which is simply because an athletic trainer is present to assess injuries on site.

The number of students participating in sports has increased dramatically as has the physical demands on their young bodies. Some products, like answer keys, may require a teacher or homeschooling certificate. While the titles may sound similar, there are several key differences including educational requirements, certification procedures, work settings and standards of professional practice.

The importance of athletic trainers

They have the knowledge of how to plan for and respond to an emergency situation. Their patients range from premature infants with undeveloped lungs to elderly patients who have diseased lungs. First, my athletic trainer helps to room patients, initiates the history and basic physical examination, arranges for paperwork such as lab studies, MRI scans, and general prescriptions, and reviews radiographs and MRI scans with me.

Athletic Trainer Job Description

These include overseeing general care of student-athletes, coordination of care with teachers and other administrative staff, directing preventative care for a wide range of injuries, providing referrals and expediting medical care for injured athletes, and much more. ATCs are some of the most qualified medical professional to respond to the needs of the student-athlete and physically active population. Along the way to recovery, athletic trainers provide important feedback that guides return-to-play decisions made by the sports medicine team.

The Role of the Athletic Trainer

Athletic trainers track things like patient encounters, outcomes, clinical throughput, time loss, injuries and patient satisfaction.
