Strategy and Policy Development

For instance, it is a difficult model to apply in the public sector because social problems can be very complex, ill-defined and interdependent. We present an overview of the interdisciplinary literature on the roles of scientific experts when advising policymakers on complex issues, and in particular on the factors that influence these roles.

Recruitment of Policy Leaders

By scrutinizing agency plans, goals, and operations, advisers and advisory committees serve a variety of functions and attempt to strike a balance between openness and citizen access to government and the need for discipline and sophisticated expertise in policymaking. However, the resulting variation is typically interpreted only as differences in innate ability, ignoring the other sources.

EPA science advisers slammed the agency for ignoring science. Here is what they said

In response to this recommendation, the NIH will not require but strongly encourages institutions to develop and use IDPs for graduate students and postdoctoral researchers supported by NIH awards, regardless of their position title.
