Her research interests include policing, transnational crime, criminal groups and state responses.

Criminology: A Very Short Introduction

Other suggestions which may reduce the effect of net-widening under an expiation approach are: inclusion of a provision for some form of cautioning for certain categories of minor cannabis offences; and dropping the offence of possession of equipment for using cannabis, as it is a very common offence under the CEN scheme and is mostly detected in the context of CENs being issued for other cannabis offences. In 2004, 19% of males were daily smokers, compared with 16% of females.
